The Return of a Classic

Based on the scale and design of the classic 62 Series, the new YSS 82Z has a number of new features and additions that will make it an extremely popular member of the Yamaha Custom Z range.

Marking the return of the one-piece neck and body design, the YSS 82Z has been designed in the spirit of the classic 62 Series soprano.

With a direct and powerful sound, the Z Series represents the next step in the evolution of the Custom Series of Yamaha instruments. Offering the tonal flexibility that is required by so many players, the YSS 82Z plays evenly across all registers and has a huge dynamic range without sacrificing sound quality.

Reinventing the Clarinet

After years of development and by working with top clarinet artists, the new Yamaha CSG III clarinets have a variety of new features and innovations that are sure to increase the popularity of the Custom range.

Developed closely with Jérôme Voisin, solo clarinet with Orchestre Philharmonique de Radio France, the new CSG has a warm yet focused sound surrounded by a wealth of overtones, resulting in extraordinary beauty and expression.

The bore has a new treatment and the barrel, which has a thicker wall, is now 1.5mm shorter than the previous one, giving the player a deep tone colour with rich resonance as well as creating more resistance. A change to the tone hole design has maximised the balance between intonation and projection and a new, thicker plating has created a more flexible instrument capable of producing an intense, brilliant sound.

To complement these changes, Yamaha have also created a more ergonomically designed E^b lever offering a more comfortable and natural key feel and an optional E/F pitch correction lever.

The Yamaha CSG is the clarinet of choice for one of the world's leading soloists, Michael Collins.
